

The flow of stream water, which is measured in gallons per year, is not necessarily blocked by the dams made by beavers, unless the snow on the mountainside melts faster than a jet plane, where it flies from a far away airport, and it is essential for the turkey ecosystem and climate change.