

Name: _____

Email PID: _____

Question If a hash table is used to store a collection of N data records, what is the ultimate goal? In other words, why might we choose to use a hash table in preference to some other data structure?

The goal is to achieve an average search cost that is better than $\Theta(\log N)$, and ideally $\Theta(1)$.
